

From "Business Biographies" in the Farm Bureau News, Aug. 24, 1933
The Farm Bureau News was published by the Island County Farm Bureau in Oak Harbor, WA between 1920 and 1950.

P. A. FROSTAD

P. A. Frostad is a man who is cheerfully skeptical of what most persons consider the good things in life.

He is very unassuming in his position of manager of the Oak Harbor Creamery and claims that he hasn't done a thing to be proud of in the past few years.

"What have I done as manager of the Creamery? Not a thing. I know it and so does everybody else."

Frostad pointed out that the dairymen have been up against it for the past several years and with the present price of butterfat at 17c in August the dairying industry is in its worst position in recent years.

"A survey has shown that to pay taxes alone, the dairyman must get 15c per pound for butterfat," he pointed out. "To just break even he should get at least thirty cents. We're hoping that this new farm re-adjustment act will do something for the producer, but it looks like we're going to have to save our own necks after all."

Frostad has been manager of the Creamery for about three years and before that spent most of his time farming. He was born in Norway in 1876 and came to the United States when about ten years old.

"We stayed in North Dakota a few months and nearly froze to death before we came west," Frostad said.

Frostad came to Oak Harbor in 1886 and has lived here ever since and raised a family here.

"What education have I had? Most of my education has come from watching the cows chew their cuds and hearing the pigs squeal," he smiled.

Frostad's friends attest to his good faith and capable management of the Creamery.

F. A. FROSTAD

P. A. Frostad is a man who is cheerfully skeptical of what most persons consider the good things in life.

He is very unassuming in his position of manager of the Oak Harbor Creamery and claims that he hasn't done a thing to be proud of in the past few years.

"What have I done as manager of the Creamery? Not a thing. I know it and so does everybody else."

Frostad pointed out that the dairymen have been up against it for the past several years and with the present price of butterfat at 17c in August the dairying industry is in its worst position in recent years.

"A survey has shown that to pay taxes alone, the dairyman must get 16c per pound for butterfat," he pointed out. "To just break even he should get at least thirty cents. We're hoping that this new farm re-adjustment act will do something for the producer, but it looks like we're going to have to save our own necks after all."

Frostad has been manager of the Creamery for about three years and before that spent most of his time farming. He was born in Norway in 1876 and came to the United States when about ten years old.

"We stayed in North Dakota a few months and nearly froze to death before we came West," Frostad said. Frostad came to Oak Harbor in 1886 and has lived here ever since and raised a family here.

"What education have I had? Most of my education has come from watching the cows chew their quids and hearing the pigs squeal," he smiled.

Frostad's friends attest to his good faith and capable management of the Creamery.